I trust that enough of human interest has been woven into the story to carry you pleasantly to the far-away places described. When you read of old Captain Bwanson, and Hadley, and Doctor Saville, please remember that none of their imperfections are charged to you, since you have never seen a line of the story. Your kind words, however, have encouraged me to carry this little romance to a conclusion, and, whether you shall like it, or whether it shall offend you, please look upon it as a modest token of friendship. Thanks are due to Xx. ABTHTE M. of the San Ckromielc, for friendly services in certain he is not to be blamed for departures f The great kindness of my old friend J. V. ten. No character in any story has a larger heart than that which beats in his breast. I hope that W. D. C. will not be disappointed when he sees how far this effort has fallen short of his expectations. Time may yet work. LH.
